

Eileen Doyle Bio

Eileen Doyle

Eileen is the Vice President of Program at Girl Scouts of the USA. She loves this job because she loves what Girl Scouts do--change the world, as leaders in their daily lives and all around the globe, too!

Eileen started working at Girl Scouts as a membership and program consultant and learned so much as she travelled around the country meeting girls, volunteers and council staff members. As part of the Core Business Strategy team, Eileen worked with the Girl Scout community to help shape our unique definition of leadership, based on the Discover, Connect and Take Action keys. In her current role, she is thrilled to be partnering with the Girl Scout community to give every girl a chance to use these keys and light up the leader within.

Eileen earned her Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Pennsylvania and her Masters in Social Work at Hunter College. Prior to coming to Girl Scouts eleven years ago, Eileen started and managed a variety of community-based programs, including an aftercare center for young people released from jail, a case management program for elementary school children and their families, and a “seniors helping seniors” volunteer corps.

When she isn't working, Eileen loves being outside, hiking with her husband and dog (a very energetic boxer!) and going on pizza outings with her nieces and nephews. And Eileen loves silly jokes—so if you have one, add it to her collection!
